MISCONCEPTIONS

When non-patient care consulting or other professional activities occur on weekends or in the evening, the time spent does not need to be reported as the activities occur “outside work hours,” or on “off time” or “doesn’t interfere with my university duties.”

“I can accept direct payment for patient-care professional services as long as I report the income during the annual reconciliation process and pay the assessments.”

Patient-care income can be retained under the Guidelines on Occasional Outside Professional Activities.

The Report of Compensated Outside Professional Activities only needs to be submitted when outside income is reported.
