The School of Medicine Office of Graduate Studies is proud to offer a workshop for Students, Postdocs, and Faculty in the Biomedical Sciences on:

Communicating Science: Distilling Your Message
How to talk clearly and conversationally about complex medicine and science without “dumbing it down.”

Join the Alan Alda Center for Communicating Science on:

January 6, 2015
10:15 a.m. – 12:15 p.m.
Nelson Auditorium

The goal of this workshop is to help participants learn to communicate more effectively about science and medicine with people outside their field, including the general public, students, policy makers, the media, potential employers or funders and prospective collaborators in other disciplines. Through discussion and practice, we will focus on building fundamental skills -- knowing your audience, connecting with your audience, and speaking clearly and conversationally about your work and why it matters.
